

DundeeWealth™ Stands Up For Kids™
Lewis Black to headline fundraising event

TORONTO, September 25, 2008 – DundeeWealth Inc. (“DundeeWealth”) today announced it will present an evening of comedy at the Winter Garden Theatre on Tuesday, October 28 in support of youth services organization Covenant House Toronto. American comic and Daily Show veteran Lewis Black will headline the public fundraising event – Stand Up For Kids.

Stand Up For Kids (www.standupforkids.ca) will be hosted by Kate Davis and also features performances from Canada’s own Mike Wilmot, Terry McGurrin, Joanna Downey and James Cunningham. All proceeds from ticket sales will be donated to charity.

“Covenant House Toronto has been at the centre of essential response, care and active concern for kids at risk in our city for more than two decades,” said David Goodman, President and Chief Executive Officer of DundeeWealth. “It’s a privilege to support an organization that plays such an important role in building a safe and successful society. I hope Torontonians will join us at Stand Up For Kids on behalf of the extraordinary work that Covenant House is doing in our city.”

Covenant House Toronto, Canada’s largest youth shelter, has helped more than 50,000 young people since 1982. It provides a range of programs to homeless and runaway youth including crisis care, counseling, educational courses, job assistance and transitional housing.

Tickets are available to the public and can be purchased through Ticketmaster by visiting www.ticketmaster.ca or calling 416-872-5555.
